BOYS RETURNING

SERGEANT WILSON ARNETT ARRIVES JULY 3D, LIEUT. RICHARD ARNETT REACHES U. S.

The sons of Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Arnett of 311 North Jackson street are coming back from war. Sergeant Wilson Arnett, of the Tank Corps, arrived on the 3d of July. He saw about eight months' service over there, but did not get into action. Contrary to many of the returning soldiers he has a very favorable opinion of the work of the Y. M. C. A. and says he would have found soldiering very hard had it not been for the "Y." He credits it with doing a wonderful work and while he admits there may have been mismanagement and mistakes in some instances, he thinks they have been exaggerated and declares it gave good service in the camps where he was stationed.

His brother, Lieutenant Richard Arnett, of an infantry division, landed on the Atlantic Coast a week ago Friday and his arrival in California is expected soon.

Lieutenant Claud Arnett, who is with a Machine Gun Division, is still over there unless he is en route for the U. S., which may be the case, as he hoped to be sent home in July. Five Arnett boys were in service.

Sergeant Wilson Arnett will return to college at Corvallis, Oregon, this fall to complete his senior year. He is taking a literary course preparatory to a law course. Meanwhile he will look for a job this summer.

G. G. D. A. MEETING

The regular weekly meeting of the Greater Glendale Development Association will be held this (Tuesday) evening in the library of the Intermediate School at 8 o'clock. Members are urged to come out and discuss matters of considerable importance to the welfare of Glendale which will be considered informally at the session.

NORTON C. WELLS,
President.

C. D. LUSBY,
Secretary.

AUTO SMASHED SHOW WINDOW

A lady who was driving south on Brand boulevard yesterday afternoon, became confused when another auto cut in before her and turned her machine sharply to the right, causing it to climb the curb and smash through the plate glass front of Platt's tire store. Each driver seemed to think the other was to blame for the accident.

YOUNG PEOPLE OF WEST GLENDALE M. E. CHURCH ENJOY WEEK-END OUTING

Last Saturday afternoon, a jolly company of young people of the West Glendale M. E. Church, six young ladies, all dressed in khaki suits, and four young men, all of whom had been in military service and who were wearing their uniforms, accompanied by chaperones, left Glendale at 4 o'clock in the afternoon for Sierra Madre, where they took the trail for Mt. Wilson, planning to spend the night and return home the following afternoon. They reached the half-way house about 8 o'clock in the evening, and after resting for about an hour they proceeded on their journey to the top of the mountain, arriving about midnight, stopping frequently to rest along the way. Two cabins were secured when they arrived at their destination and a very tired, but very happy, cheerful bunch of young people turned in to enjoy a few hours' sleep before the rising of the sun, which they had all promised to get up and behold as it rose over the distant range.

The next morning was spent in visiting the various points of interest such as Strains Camp, Inspiration Point, Echo Rock, the Great Observatory, etc.

After partaking of a good dinner, about 2 o'clock, they started again down the trail, reaching the half-way house about 3:30 p. m., and the foot of the trail in time to get the early evening car for Los Angeles, arriving home in Glendale about 9 o'clock in the evening, all feeling that they had enjoyed one of the most delightful trips of their lives. The party was composed of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Perry of Los Angeles, chaperones; the Misses Ruth Spafford, Eva Gould, Helen Gould, Alda Gervais, Irene Gervais, Anne Cookman; Guy Pixley, James P. Reed, Alfred and William W. Cookman, Jr., the latter being home on a furlough over the Fourth from Camp Kearny.

NINE NEW ELKS

BIG PREPARATIONS FOR BEAUTIFUL SETTING OF ORIENTAL DANCE SATURDAY NIGHT

More members were initiated at the regular meeting of the Elks' Club Monday evening. The initiation work was put on by the Lodge officials and it was marked by no special features. The candidates thus received were: W. A. Rowe, F. H. Clark, Angelo Camillo, R. L. Galvin, L. R. Tarr, W. Q. Roberts, A. H. Fuelscher, F. C. Bishop, M. H. Thompson of Prescott, Ariz. The initiation of the man last named was performed for Lodge No. 330 of Prescott.

Announcements of matters of interest to Elks were made, and it was discovered by members of the entertainment committee that tickets to the number of 350 have been sold for the Oriental Dance which comes off next Saturday night and more tickets will have to be issued to accommodate members who desire to come. No such response has ever been made before and it shows the growing interest in Elks' functions.

It will, without doubt, be the most brilliant affair the Lodge has ever given as the entire building, the exterior as well as the interior, will be made beautiful with Oriental decorations that will climax in the Lodge hall which will be locked during the balance of the week, as it is to be in charge of the workmen who have been employed to install the fittings which will include a great many beautiful examples of Oriental art, rare tapestries, Mandarin skirts, etc.

Changes have been made in the original plan and a supper will be served during the evening from 8:30 in the tearoom down stairs where parties of 50 at a time will be served. Those who wish to patronize this feature should make reservations at once.

While dancing will occupy the evening, entertainment will be provided for those who do not dance. It is, of course, an Elks function and will be limited to members and their ladies.

WAGONER HEALD

ARRIVES HOME AFTER THIRTEEN MONTHS' FOREIGN SERVICE

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Heald of 308 East Lomita avenue had a delightful surprise in the arrival on this (Tuesday) morning of their son, Wagoner D. Ellsworth Heald from Coblenz, Germany, after thirteen months' service overseas. He is looking and feeling fine and is very soldierly in his uniform which bears two gold stripes. He is not yet discharged, but has been granted a two months' furlough and during that period he hopes to get his release in due form. He was a dispatch rider for the Headquarters Company and had many a dangerous experience.

FINE CAMPING SITE

Dr. and Mrs. James E. Eckles and family returned Sunday night from a three-day camping trip which took them to Juenema by the Sea and to Ventura where they looked up other camping sites in anticipation of more trips of the same kind. In Seaside Park at Ventura, which has been prepared as a hospitable provision by the city for visiting strangers who wish to camp, they found an ideal spot, according to the doctor. It is so situated as to be within a very short distance of either the river or the sea so fishermen can test their luck in both fresh and salt water. It is a beauty spot and has plenty of shade so it is not unlikely the Eckles family will be camping there some time this summer. Its situation by the sea insures its coolness.

CHIEF LANKFORD'S CAR

Chief Lankford's Red Devil, otherwise known as his Buick, came limping into Station No. 1 this morning, but was not nearly so badly crippled as any one would imagine it must be following its experience last Thursday morning when it turned turtle and skated around on the pavement at Central and Los Feliz Road after colliding with an auto driven by Jitneyman Honeyfelt. A catalogue of its injuries includes breakage of one front and one rear wheel, of one rear spring, steering wheel and windshield. The body was scratched and dented, but that can be restored to comely lines and paint will renew its beauty. The wheels were not too badly injured to revolve and the engine was running when it returned to its home in the fire station.

BURLESON TENDERS RESIGNATION

TELLS THE PRESIDENT HE DOES IT FOR THE GOOD OF THE DEMOCRATIC PARTY

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—President Wilson has received the resignation of Postmaster General Burleson. It is learned that Burleson cabled it to the president shortly after the American Federation of Labor passed a resolution demanding that Wilson remove him.

Burleson is said to have told Wilson he is resigning for the good of the Democratic party. The president has cabled his thanks to Burleson for his attitude and indicated that he would withhold consideration of the resignation until he reached the United States.

Burleson when approached in regard to the matter refused to either affirm or deny that he had tendered his resignation.

VON TIRPITZ MAY BE TRIED

ENGLAND MAY DEMAND THE TRIAL OF THE AUTHOR OF SUBMARINE WARFARE

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LONDON, July 8.—The "Times" today says that England will demand the trial of Admiral von Tirpitz, the author of submarine warfare, along with the Kaiser and other war criminals. One cabinet minister admitted there is a possibility that after the Kaiser has been tried an international high court will indict Tirpitz in the same way that an American grand jury would indict a criminal, and then try him.

PRESIDENT REACHES NEW YORK

IS WELCOMED BY BANDS AND ENORMOUS CROWDS OF PEOPLE CARRYING FLOWERS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

NEW YORK, July 8.—President Wilson arrived in New York this morning. The transport, "George Washington" anchored off the quarantine station about eleven o'clock and the president planned to come ashore in about three hours.

Crowds who had gathered to welcome the president thronged the piers, many persons carrying flowers, and bands were on hand ready to play.

The president will speak in New York this afternoon and go to Washington tonight. Washington also is planning to give him a big reception. Many important matters await the president's attention. These include: the appointment of a charge d'affaires in Berlin; arrangements for the resumption of commercial relations with Germany; the consideration of Secretary Baker's persistently reported desire to resign; the determination of when demobilization shall be completed and war prohibition be lifted; the question of returning the railways to their owners; a decision as to whether it will be necessary to await the ratification of the peace treaty by the Senate before proclaiming peace.

CHARGE OF MURDER FILED AGAINST NEW

AFTER AUTOPSY ON BODY OF HIS VICTIM THIS AFTERNOON HE WILL PROBABLY BE ARRAIGNED

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

LOS ANGELES, July 8.—A formal complaint charging murder in the first degree was today filed against Harry S. New who claims he is the son of United States Senator New of Indiana. An autopsy on the body of Frieda Lesser will be held this afternoon and later New will probably be arraigned. It is expected that his mother will reach here from Indianapolis tomorrow.

SECRETARY LANSING COMING HOME

WILL HANDLE TREATY MATTERS DURING SENATE DEBATE—POLK TO REPLACE HIM AT PARIS

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Secretary Lansing today cabled the Department of State that he is not quitting Paris today as reported, but that he will leave this week for Washington. He will handle the numerous peace treaty matters which will come up during the deliberations of the Senate.

It is expected that Under-Secretary Polk will leave soon to take the place of Secretary Lansing in Paris.

CHALLENGE TO PRESIDENT WILSON

SENATOR SHERMAN OF ILLINOIS IN RESOLUTION DEMANDS "BY WHAT AUTHORITY HE IMPOSES LEAGUE"

(Special Service to Glendale Evening News)

WASHINGTON, July 8.—Senator Sherman of Illinois today introduced a resolution demanding that the President tell the Senate "under what right or by what lawful authority he has undertaken to impose upon the people of this country and make its government subject to the powers and organization created by the league of nations."

CAN'T HOLD HIM DOWN EARTHQUAKE TERRORS

FIRE CHIEF LANKFORD IS OUT ON THE STREET ALREADY

Chief Lankford of the Glendale Fire Department, who was hurt in an auto collision last Thursday morning, was able to hobble around with the use of a cane Monday. His hip, though badly bruised, had no bones broken or cracked and his broken rib was so carefully bandaged that it gave him little pain. He will be back on the job again before many days.

Geo. Purrier's broken ankle of course will keep him in for two or three weeks and Ed. Fairfield's broken ribs and collar bone, together with the severe nervous shock, make it necessary for him to be very quiet for some days yet. Taking everything into consideration, all three of them got off rather fortunately.

CONTEST

A contest for new members is being carried on in the Epworth League of the First M. E. church. The membership of the League has been divided into two sides with Verne Wilson and Elwood Ingledue as captains. Verne's side is called the "Red Sox" and Elwood's is the "White Sox." The contest is taking the form of a baseball game and will continue through to the middle of August.

FEAR FATALITY BURNED

MRS. O. R. BURT OF NORTH CENTRAL AVE. MEETS DREADFUL ACCIDENT

At one o'clock today Mrs. O. R. Burt of 1020 North Central avenue was found lying in the kitchen, her clothing in flames. A doctor was hastily summoned. She is thought to be fatally burned. The cause of the awful accident is not apparent, as no one else was at home and she is unable to tell.

SECOND PROMOTION IN TWO WEEKS

These service men who resume the jobs they left to enlist in the war for humanity seem to make good from the start. There's Leslie Tarr, who went back to his old job on the L. A. Express at a raise of $3.00 a week in his salary. Just last week he was given another boost and is now on the staff as police court reporter. He is in love with his work, so is bound to advance rapidly.

TRADE EXPERT CHARGES GOVERNMENT HINDERING EFFORTS TO GET FOREIGN BUSINESS

That the initiative of American manufacturers and producers in securing foreign trade is being seriously hampered by official red tape and snobbishness of certain government office holders who enjoy exercising a little brief authority is the charge made by Dr. D. E. Aughinbaugh, a world traveler and foreign trade expert, who is now the guest of his mother in a Los Angeles suburb and who recently expressed to a local reporter the opinion that the United States is not taking the advantage it should of the opportunities for foreign trade.

Business men and trade bodies in the United States are to some extent to blame for an apparent indifference to foreign trade possibilities, Dr. Aughinbaugh says, and great responsibility for the lukewarm attitude toward overseas markets may be directly charged to the government of the United States. He declared that American business men, anxious to get abroad and secure business, are embarrassed and insulted when they apply for passports.

"With the single exception of the department of commerce," he said, "which has done its work in a manner reflecting credit on all of its bureaus and every one of its employees, the branches of the United States government which should co-operate with the department of commerce and with the business men of the country have treated with scorn our attempts to properly enter foreign trade fields."

"The passport bureau of the state department seems to feel itself authorized to embarrass and insult American business men anxious to get abroad and secure business. Delays are imposed and papers are frequently lost."

"Indeed, it seems possible to get a passport only through a pull, a visit to Washington and a liberal amount (Continued on Page 2)

FORMER GLENDALE RESIDENT WRITES OF SCENES ATTENDANT ON TREMBLOR

Mrs. Samuel Eastman, for several years a resident of Glendale, but now in San Salvador, Central America, recently wrote her mother, Mrs. Jas. Graham, of 200 East Dryden, a description of a severe earthquake that visited that country. She and her little son Sam went down there nearly a year ago to join Mr. Eastman, who is manager of a branch of a large Los Angeles wholesale grocery house. The boy, who is ten years old, is now on his way back to Glendale, on account of his health, the climate down there not agreeing with him. He is in charge of a missionary lady whose home is in San Diego. Her nerves are so shattered from earthquake experiences that she comes home for a complete rest. Mrs. Eastman is a sister of Frank Littell, who recently returned home from overseas. Her letter follows:

"Dear Folks:—

"We are still on earth, although we have a little quake or two every night. They are small ones and don't do any damage but they are the deuce on one's nerves. We are sleeping outside in the corridor—an unknown procedure as no one sleeps outside here on sleeping porches the way we do at home, unless in dire time or emergency. The natives are deathly afraid of the night air and predict rheumatism and other ailments for us, but so far we have enjoyed better rest than we could possibly do in the house, as one gets the noise and motion of the quakes so much more distinctly inside the house. Sam is still here, but must get away soon again. We figured up yesterday that of the rest of the year, he will only be home in San Salvador about two months of the time, so we are in a dilemma as to just what to do with Sammy and myself. Traveling with him is possible, of course, but it will take at least $250 gold a month and will take us into countries where there is much malaria and to Costa Rica, where a healthy revolution is raging just now. I can't stay alone after my experience with the quake, and we may compromise by my staying here in the daytime and going to a hotel in the nights. The house is anything but a beautiful sight, but is safe and liveable as any of them, I guess. It may even be possible that we will de-

BLAZE IN LYTLE CREEK CANYON DELAYS THE BARTONS RETURNING FROM CAMPING TRIP

Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Barton and family returned Monday evening from a camp outing on Lytle Creek and are enthusiastic over the site they chose which is about a mile from Glen Ranch where supplies of all sorts can be purchased. It is only about sixty miles from Glendale, is at an elevation of between 3300 and 3500 feet, there is abundant shade, plenty of water, and all surroundings are ideal for camping. They took their own outfit in a trailer so were quite independent, which was fortunate, as there was a steady stream of autos Thursday and Friday containing tourists planning to spend the Fourth in the mountains.

Coming home they were delayed by a heavy forest fire which burned off the brush cover of the mountain side in Lytle Creek Canyon and was going over the top when they came away. Up to that time no buildings had been destroyed. All the men in the canyon were pressed into service to fight it and crews of fire fighters were sent up from San Bernardino. Mrs. Barton says it was her first view of such a fire and it was a wonderful sight to see the flames climb the hill, but also a terrible sight when one considered the damage that might result to hundreds of resorts in that great pleasure ground, not to speak of the mountain cover which is of such value in conserving the rainfall upon which irrigation is dependent.

BIBLE STUDY SCHOOL

A Bible Study School which began Monday morning and will be held every day except Saturday and Sunday for the balance of the month, is being conducted at the Tropic Presbyterian Church from 9 to 12. Rev. Kinning, pastor of the Sunset Hills Presbyterian Church of Los Angeles, has charge and is being assisted by Miss Bessie Bradbeer, Miss Laycock and others. It is open to any one who wishes to come. The program includes opening exercises, Bible stories, craft work, and a recess in which there are games and recreation.

WHY SHOULD THIS BE ALLOWED?

Beef cattle bring 25 per cent. less than they did two months ago and the magnanimous packers declined the price of dressed beef to the retailer about 8 per cent. in the past month. Scared at their unheard of magnanimity they advanced beef a cent a pound today. Hides are to be had in limitless quantities now, yet footgear is advancing in price by leaps and bounds. Why should these things be?

MAY HAVE UNIVERSAL COIN

What a comfort money would be that one could spend anywhere in the world without exchanging it for the local brand of currency! As one result of the league of nations movement we may have an international coin. We may even have an international paper note, or certificate, or whatever we may choose to call it. One of the earliest problems tackled by the founders of our own government was that of replacing the coins current in different states with money of a value recognizable in all parts of the country. Even in those days Thomas Jefferson and others advocated an international coin. More than sixty years ago the matter was discussed in congress, and in 1867 a conference at Paris, in which the United States and eighteen other nations took part, recommended a 25-franc piece as a unit, to which the British sovereign and our half-eagle might be made to conform.

There was also to be considered the Spanish 25-peseta piece, which is nearly equal in intrinsic value to our half-eagle. The same may be said of the Japanese five-yen gold coin. Somewhat lower in worth is the twenty-mark piece of Germany. It is the difference in number of grains of gold that has made the difficulty in trying to make these coins harmonize monetarily. These things cannot be arranged. Hence the attempt in 1879 to obtain the acceptance of the Austrian twenty-crown piece as an international coin, corresponding in value to a $4 gold piece which it was recommended we should mint.

An international coin (as tentatively described) would be stamped on one side with an international design, stating its value in the monetary terms of various countries. On the other side it would exhibit design and lettering to identify it with the country of its origin. Every year many millions of dollars' worth of British, French and other foreign gold coins are melted at our mints and used as bullion for conversion into United States money. Other nations deal with our coins in the same way. It seems a pity, because an obvious waste of labor. An international gold piece, in perhaps three denominations, would do away with this absurdity.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

LITTLE STORY ABOUT COCKTAILS

One of the most noted hotel owners in the United States is E. M. Statler, with big hostleries in Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, St. Louis, and he is the manager of the Pennsylvania hotel in New York City, the latter one of the largest if not the the largest in America. Two of his hotels are already in dry territory and the others soon will be.

For a year he has had a chance to study the effects of prohibition in his hotel in Detroit. He tells about it in the June number of the American Magazine. This is the high spot in his article:

More men are having a little family "spree" by taking their wives out to dinner. In the old days there used to be a line of men at our telephone booths between 5 and 6 in the afternoon, calling up their homes to announce that "business" was going to keep them downtown and not to expect them home for dinner.

In most of these cases the visit to the telephone booth was followed by a more or less protracted sojourn at the bar and by a dinner, with trimmings of drinks in the grill-room. There is still a certain amount of this late afternoon telephoning; but the message now is more often than not an invitation to the man's wife to "come on downtown and have dinner."

Mr. Statler says many other interesting things, but this alone is sufficient justification for prohibition.

And speaking of "going down town to dinner," Sherry's, the most famous eating and drinking place in New York, closed a month ago. The owner saw what was coming, accommodated himself to the inevitable, moved several blocks up town, and established a great candy and catering establishment. Coming events cast some shadows.—San Bernardino Sun.

of tipping to the minor employees with whom one is brought in contact."

He believes the state department should have representatives in all large commercial centers to issue passports to recognized business men desiring to go abroad for legitimate purposes, instead of delaying them for weeks or months.

He asserted that the state department is jealous of the department of commerce, and tries to checkmate the efforts of the latter.

The world demand for years to come, Dr. Aughinbaugh says, will be for finished necessities, including food, clothes, building materials, tools, machinery, mine, factory and railroad equipment.

"The markets which Germany and Austria-Hungary lost," he added, "coupled with the limited production for several years to come of Great Britain, France, Belgium, Italy, Portugal and the neutral countries, such as Holland, Switzerland, Norway, Sweden and Denmark, mean that the United States must cater to a large purchasing public than ever before in her history."

"It naturally follows that if the things which we supply these new clients are adapted to their needs, if our prices are right, our banking connections efficient and our business based on reciprocity and on foreign investments, and our common carriers able to deliver goods as agreed upon, then these markets will be ours for all time. It will require more than an ordinary circumstance to dislodge us from them."

Dr. Aughinbaugh says the shipping board has not solved certain vital problems, that important details such as necessary bottoms to carry American merchandise, docking facilities, lighterage systems, warehouses and dry docks in foreign ports had not been worked out.

Until these things are worked out there is nothing to prevent competitors from delaying discharge of vessels at destinations until demurrage and other charges accumulate against goods in the holds so that the markets will be closed, despite prices and other favorable conditions American salesmen have offered.

Chief among the suggestions made by Dr. Aughinbaugh as a practical means of correcting evils that threaten America's foreign trade was this: "Let us force a foreign trade plank in every political platform and see to it that the men we elect live up to this foreign trade item, for it means work and prosperity for every man, woman and child in the land."

He also suggests that every banker familiarize himself with the new monetary laws and especially the Federal Reserve Act in order that he may know how to help the exporter and importer.

Can Be Set At Many Tasks

It is just 75 years since Electricity was put to work serving man's needs. When S. F. B. Morse set this great agent to conveying men's words long distances over slender wires he started the mightiest movement the world has ever known.

Then came the electric light, the telephone and other great utilities. Today the Electric Motor runs the washer, the wringer, the sewing machine, the vacuum cleaner and the fan; and it lights the house, heats it in winter season and cooks the meals. Let us figure with you on introducing some or all of these utilities into your home.

EARTHQUAKE TERRORS

cide the best and most economical thing for me to do is to go home before the year is up, but don't count on it as I want to stay here with Sam if possible until his year's contract is up. But when we came down here, he really had no idea it would be necessary to do so much traveling as he thought he could turn it over to the various agents, but they simply don't get the business, and he does.

"I am enclosing an account of the earthquake—a little delayed, but was in no shape to write it before. Sam was away in Honduras and I had very bravely told him to stay out and finish his trip which was to take him clear through to Costa Rica and consume three months in all. An English woman and her little daughter had just come to the house three days before the quake to keep me company or it would have been much worse. I probably would still be sitting in the middle of the room wondering what it was all about if she hadn't screamed 'get out quick—an earthquake.' As she had been through many in Mexico, she knew when she came face to face with one, although she had never been in one like this before. Up to the time she came I had been sleeping with all the doors shut and if such had been the case the night of the quake, Lord only knows what might have happened as the doors jam and can't be opened in a bad quake. Well, anyway, we went to bed one Sunday night—April 28th—to sleep the sleep of the just and righteous. The next thing I knew the whole world was shaking down upon us—most of it on us apparently. We were sleeping so soundly that we never awakened until the quake was well under way and great chunks of plaster were raining upon our bed and the heavy furniture was falling on all sides of us. (Paradise me a minute—a bunch of oxen in front of the office door are threatening to stampee right into the house). The noise was satanic—both under and on top of our feet. I cannot possibly make you understand the sensation a first-rate quake produces. You feel the world shaking under you in great waves like the sea, and get the effect that at any second it may rise up and hit you square in the nose. There is nowhere to go and nothing to do except to get into the open, but even there you can't get away from that sickening, nauseating sensation that old Dame Nature has forsaken you and you are absolutely at her mercy. I have a hazy recollection of people screaming and saying their prayers in the patio next to ours.

"Never having been through a similar experience, I was, of course, not ready. Had no matches or candle by my bed—didn't even know the location of my slippers or bath robe. I dragged son from bed and never before knew how many tons a small boy can weigh. He got all tangled up in the mosquito netting we have over our bed, and when I finally got him to the door he ran right back into the shaking house again. He said later that he wasn't fully awake enough to realize what was happening and thought I was taking him out into a rain storm—the plaster was falling so thickly. Just as we got to the door a heavy wardrobe fell flat making a terrific crash, and the lights went out everywhere. I don't believe you can know what a dreadful thing it is to be in pitch darkness with the whole city careening about you like a drunken man. We ran out into the patio and bumped against what seemed like a mountain side. It proved to be the high wall which separated us from the next house. At the first quiver, every last brick had fallen, and all into our yard. The motion of the earthquake was such that it never even disturbed the pile of wood which our neighbor had stacked against the wall. I was in my bare feet with a thin gown—son was in like shape, and the house shaking so badly we were afraid to go back into it for any more clothes. In the midst of this pandemonium the children each simultaneously remembered their little puppy dogs and began to wail that they would not budge an inch until they were found. They each became adamant and at the peril of our lives we went back into the house to search for them. We found one under the bed. The other one we couldn't find and I decided he must have run out in time to be caught under the falling wall. Then son remembered about his silver watch hanging in the dining room, which at that moment seemed a hundred miles away. He argued that Mrs. Curtis, a friend of ours, had said that in time of an earthquake you always ought to have a watch, and I had another 'set to' to dislodge the watch idea from his head. All I wanted to do was to get out and away to the park. We succeeded in locking our trunks, which is a wise precaution if one can keep his head enough to do it, for thieves begin looting immediately in these crises. We borrowed some candles from the people next door, grabbed a hectic assortment of clothing—I found out later I walked to the park with an embroidered sheet thrown around me—and started on that "long trail" to the front door, opening to the street. We had to go through four big, black rooms to get there, and I assure you the entire trip from Los Angeles to Central America didn't seem any longer than that distance that had to be traversed to get us safely out into the street. When we finally got there a strange sight met our eyes. Of course the streets were all inky black, but there were many strange, ghost-like figures running and walking along with bobbing candles and flickering lanterns—every one weighted down with a ridiculous assortment of junk, ranging all the way from poll parrots to blankets. Every one was actuated by a common motive—to get to the park before another 'whopper' came along and threw the rest of the roofs on us. When we got there, there were already hundreds about, sitting down, standing up, wringing their hands, etc. Every five minutes another quake would come—so strong that you would swear it was just under your particular pair of feet and was going to make a hole in the pavement right under you. My friend and I were 'manless' and it wasn't long before wicked-looking men came up and leered in our faces, so we decided we must get on to the next plaza, further up, where we felt sure we would find some of the American bunch. We made our way along the dark streets, past the beautiful National Theater and the big cathedral, which until that moment had always looked so romantic in the light of southern stars. We ran into two of the American boys coming with a flask of whisky and a searchlight to look for us. We didn't need the whisky but the light certainly did look like a life saver. They guided us to the park where the rest of the English speaking people were rapidly assembling, and there we camped for the rest of the night, surrounded by weeping babies, squawking parrots, barking dogs and loud-talking, panic-stricken people, many of whom had become separated from the rest of their families. The stories of fatalities began to come in—one of a very popular young business man, who had been sleeping in a room in which was stored many bags of cement. Many tons of this cement tumbled upon him and smothered him as he lay—and it is doubtful if he ever knew what hit him. Of course, sleep was out of the question as no one knew what would happen next, and every eye was turned anxiously toward the big volcano up to see if the crater had opened up. But no crater opened and the quakes continued intermittently all night. I have never before and hope to never again, experience such a long night. It just seemed that daylight never would come. To add to our misery, we could hear shots being fired in every direction every few minutes and knew that the police and National Guard were shooting to kill all whom they found looting. We were almost afraid to hold up our heads for sometimes the bullets were less than a block away and we were almost sure we would be hit. We found out the next day that the walls of the penitentiary, a short distance away, had caved in and that many of these poor devils were shot down, like rats in a trap, when they followed the natural law of self-preservation and attempted to escape.

"Well, morning finally came—and with it such sights as beggar description. The buildings one had expected to tumble were standing staunch and unharmed, while many of the ones we had thought would stand the strain were heaps of ruins. In the poorer parts of town where most of the houses were built of adobe bricks, the loss of life must have been more than any of us have been permitted to know, for the quake came so suddenly that these poor people would not have had time to even get to the door before they would have been buried. Many of them have since died at the hospitals from their injuries. Houses of brick construction tumbled like a stack of cards while wooden houses stood the shock without any loss. When we finally got up nerve enough to come back to our domicile, the sight made us sick. Such a mess! Truly there were hundreds of pounds of plaster in every room, and on top of this great hard chunks of mud which they use in between the bamboo laths, before the top coating of plaster is put on. Great gaping holes were in all the walls, some of them showing daylight through. And when I got to the dining room, I did gasp in dismay. The china cupboard had not fallen but had evidently done a Salome wiggle all over the place, for there were just five plates, three cups and two soup plates saved from the collection. Broken dishes and food were piled a foot high—eggs, vinegar, a pudding, sugar and all the dishes heaped together in an indescribable tangle. I had just succeeded in getting enough nice dishes together to feel that I could serve a dinner to seven or eight at one time and do it right. Dishes, you know, are very scarce and expensive here. Well, there they all were—probably fifty pesos worth—broken to atoms. The kitchen was even worse. Alone and confronted with the gigantic task of having this debris cleaned up—not able to speak a word of Spanish—well, I felt desperate. Finally, we hired a 'mozo' to cart out the dirt and the poor fellow sweat 'blood' as they say until 4 o'clock that day, carrying the debris out and piling it on the funny little narrow street until the authorities complained at the hugeness of its size and made us stop. We spent most of the day running out into the patio every time a quake came and when night came again, we decided the only safe place was the park. So up we trundled with all our belongings—blankets, hammock, pillows, dogs, water, cats, etc. We put the children into the hammock where they spent most of the night sliding down hill and kicking each other. My friend, Mrs. Heslop, and I 'spelled' each other on a 'soft' park bench with a coat doubled under our heads for a pillow.

"It was not until the second morning that I got out to walk about and really see the extent of the damage. When I did I was heartsick. Hundreds of persons in the part of town where the quake seemed strongest were camped out in the streets with the hot sun beating down upon them and their babies and a few pitiful possessions gathered about them. There is one wide avenue leading to the railroad station, lined on both sides with beautiful marble statues on round pillars. Most of these went through the big quake of two years ago unscathed. These poor ladies and gentlemen were tumbled on the ground in dire confusion—some of their necks were broken—others had assumed ridiculous postures as they fell—in most cases, the round columns supporting them were gone, too, close to the ground. Strong doors, many inches thick, on business establishments, were wrenched loose and thrown down by the shock. One friend of ours, who owned an extensive library of 500 books, all in one large bookcase, had the entire thing thrown on the floor. I thought I would be a heroine and sent Sam word that the reports were exaggerated and to go on with his trip. After I got out and saw what could really happen in fifteen seconds and realized that perhaps the worst was yet to come, my nerves began to break. I stood it until the end of the week when the effects of my gypsy life began to tell and I acquired a fever of 102 degrees. Then I sent a telegram for him to come home immediately. The poor fellow traveled three nights without sleep to get here and when he finally did arrive, I went all to pieces. The continuous shakes and the horrible fear clutching one's heart that perhaps the next quake would open up the volcano and shower rocks and lava upon us were refined torture to any human and were much worse than the one big shock which was over with before we realized it.

"The general opinion prevails that the seat of the trouble is in a large lake a few miles from town. It is supposed to be volcanic and the legend goes that the Indians never failed to drain this lake every year. It had not been drained for six years prior to the quake and the supposition is that it has been getting higher and the water has flowed into the crater of the volcanic mountain which rises in its center, thus preventing the steam and gas from escaping. So the authorities valiantly set to work to drain the lake—which was like the man shutting the stable door after the horse was stolen. The lake proved so much deeper than they had any idea of, that it got away from them and rampaged all over the landscape, drowning many people and washing away their homes before they finally succeeded in checking it. The poor old lake is now drained to normal and the quakes still continue—which only goes to prove that no one knows from whence an earthquake comes or whither it goes. Small as this country is, it is reputed to boast 29 volcanoes, and if the entire 29 have a party on the same day, yours truly will not be back to see them again. Many of the rich natives who have lived here all their lives have thrown up their hands in disgust and left the place. Two big losses in less than two years is more than they can stand. Sam wants to send me home on the next boat but I am determined to stick it out if my health permits.

"My friend, Mrs. Curtis, who had only just plucked up enough courage to return two months ago after her terrifying experiences in the other quake of June, 1917, is a nervous

Realization of Home Ownership Brings Satisfaction and Contentment

We are presenting this week a very late idea in modern semi-colonial architecture that cannot help but make its appeal to you, and we are sure if you will call at our office and inspect the convenient room arrangement which has been designed to go with this home, you will want to adopt this new idea for your own home.

Do Not Wait for Opportunity

A fixed determination and sacrifices, if need be, are the all important factors which are dormant opportunities, waiting only to be aroused by you to make possible home ownership.

It is our pleasure as well as our business to offer suggestions and give competent advice to the home-building public, and we are anxious to lend our aid and offer every assistance in helping you to realize your one ambition—the ownership of a Home. See our display of modern home plans.

wreck again. We bolster up each other as best we can and often talk longingly of good old Glendale where one may go to bed in peace and feel that the earth will not rise up under the beds before morning. We hope the worst is over, but the air is full of wild rumors and superstitions revived from years gone by are in vogue in polite society."

AT WAR WITH HUNS FOR 45 LONG YEARS

(By United Press) BERNE. (By Mail). — Any arrangements the German delegates may make with the Allies at Versailles won't cut any ice with Liechtenstein. Liechtenstein never participated in the Paris conference, so a state of war still exists between her and Germany. Yet it is hard, says the Regent, Prince Charles, for Liechtenstein is the foundation stone of the grand alliance against Germany, having been at war with her aggressive neighbors since 1864.

The diplomats at Paris committed the astonishing oversight of forgetting the existence of the free and independent state of Liechtenstein. Seeing that Siam and the Hedjaz were invited to participate in the peace negotiations, Liechtenstein promptly demanded representation but no notice was taken of the demand.

Liechtenstein has an area of 65 square miles, and in 1912 had a population of 10,716. It lies between Switzerland and German-Austria. The state made war on Prussia in the Schleswig-Holstein squabble, but Prussia arrogantly overlooked the tiny state's interference and never troubled to conclude peace. Since 1911 Austria has paid 47,000 crowns a year for the privilege of running the state postal, telegraph and telephone services, but otherwise the principality was independent, under its own royal family. Liechtenstein has had no army since 1886 and no national debt. But who's going to pay that 47,000 crowns? And why shouldn't Liechtenstein be allowed to sign peace with Germany?
